Kid

ready to show their talents

EIGHT senior students are now working towards an August deadline to present their Singleton High School Max Potential projects to the public.

The Max Potential program connects community leaders with emerging young leaders.

The one-on-one coaching sessions are held every few weeks between the mentor and the individual and there are also regular get-togethers with others who are doing the program.

This provides the opportunity to brainstorm ideas and share stories.

As part of the Max Potential program students are required to make a video of their experiences.

A community service project is also part of the program that is designed to encourage the entrepreneurial spirit and build a 'can-do' attitude.

The aim and purpose of the program is to stimulate accelerated learning and develop an awareness of intellectual and physical resources, thereby enhancing self-esteem.

Recently Elliot Doughty presented an impromptu drama night with the assistance of mentor Gerard McMillan from the Singleton RSC.

Ethan Andrews is organising a rugby league gala day for high school girls.

This will be a limited-contact variation of rugby league to minimise injury and to encourage participation.

The event is going to be staged at Cook Park in conjunction with Singleton Junior Rugby League next month.

All the eight projects will be showcased at a presentation at the Singleton Heights RSC on August 31.

This is a chance to celebrate the achievements and the public are invited to hear from students and coaches.
