

Patric Scully-Hawkins – Tales of Old

My name is Patric Scully-Hawkins, I am 16 years of age, and I attend St Edwards collage, I am in year 11. Late last 2009, early 2010, I was selected to partake in the Max Potential Leadership program, Max Potential has given me a chance to open up and be free, it has shown me what it takes to talk to people and make friends easier, and for Max Potential, one of the components of the course, was the do a community project to put in place the new found skills we had, without the help of my coach, Glen Gillingham, my project wouldn't have gone ahead.

“Max Potential has given me a chance to open up and be free, it has shown me what it takes to talk to people and make friends easier”,

My project – which came from Glen – was to listen and learn about the past of the community that we live in, and he put forward the idea of Tales of the Old, and few interviews and stories of the elderly from the community. Max Potential helped me build the skills to be able to talk to anyone, not just people my own age, and allowed me to put this together. This project was the challenge set forth from the Max Potential team, and the test of the young leaders that take part in this program, I have learnt a lot from my time at Max Potential. It's a fun, enjoying and life changing program, and you make great friends along the way.
